Josh Anstey
V.P./Director of Vineyard Operations

“Greatness begins in the vineyard. I believe that you need to respect the land and understand it in order to grow the best grapes to make a memorable wine.”

— Josh Anstey

Josh Anstey manages St. Supéry Estate Vineyards & Winery's estate vineyards in the Rutherford AVA and at Dollarhide in the Napa Valley AVA. He is responsible for, and has walked every one of, the 525 total vineyard acres amidst the 1,556 total acres that make up the two Skalli Family Estates' Napa Valley properties.

Dramatic Dollarhide vineyards range in altitude from 600 to 1,100 feet in the Vaca Mountain range. Under Josh's guidance, each mountain vineyard block, including terraced pockets in the rugged higher elevations, delivers amazing fruit with acidity that helps to make the wines unusually food-friendly.

As a one-man wine-and-food pairing machine, Josh nurtures the high valley non-vineyard area by renovating and replanting heirloom orchards, planting olive trees, sustaining beehives, and tending to heirloom vegetables for notable Napa Valley chefs, including Thomas Keller and Cindy Pawlcyn.

St. Supéry Estate Vineyards & Winery is the largest family-owned, estate-produced winery in Napa Valley. We also have the largest family-owned Napa Green certified vineyards in the Valley.

A firm believer in sustainable farming, Josh has worked diligently to achieve green certification - both Napa Green and California Sustainable - on every acre on St. Supéry's property. These certifications go to properties that are managed in ways that restore fish and wildlife habit and improve water quality.

Josh joined St. Supéry in May 1999 after earning a Master's degree in Agronomy and an undergraduate degree in Agricultural Systems and Environment from University of California at Davis. His hard work and determination in the vineyards have ensured first-class viticultural practices.
